ABC-Amega COO Reappointed to the Credit Research Foundation's Board

Buffalo, NY – ABC-Amega, a global commercial receivables management firm, is excited to announce that President and COO Paul F. Catalano, was reappointed by the Credit Research Foundation (CRF) Board of Trustees as a trustee on the Board for a three-year term. The unanimous vote took place at the March 2019 annual membership meeting.

The CRF Board of Trustees are responsible for policy and financial oversight of the foundation, and oversee all CRF activities, including research, service, programs and forums, membership, financial operations and committees. As an elected trustee, Catalano is charged with promoting the interests, mission and goals of service providers, CRF members and the entire credit community.

“I am honored to continue my work with CRF as a trustee on the board,” Catalano said. “I firmly believe that the work this organization does is vital to the credit field, and I am thrilled to be involved.”

CRF works to bring the most comprehensive collection of services and resources to the business credit and accounts receivable profession. Working closely with its industry partners, CRF provides its members and their credit organizations the most wide-ranging, cutting-edge professional development available.

Membership in the Foundation is open to all individuals or businesses that have an interest in the practice of credit, accounts receivable and customer financial services. For more information, go to: www.crfonline.org.
